“Winning over unemployment”

Mei Mann, came to Swim UK and completed Swim UK’s Sporting Solutions programme for unemployed learners in November 2013, without a swimming background. She successfully completed her training and qualified as both a lifeguard and swimming teacher.

Upon qualifying she applied for a swimming teaching position with an international school in Hong Kong where she now has a full time position.

After completing introductory training, Mei now regularly teaches the school’s students to swim and also works in marketing and administrative roles within the same organisation.

Paul Smith, Managing Director of Swim UK said “It’s fantastic that our learners are able to use British qualifications to take their skills abroad. Everyone is now able to skill up and become part of the global workforce and Mei Mann has clearly and courageously demonstrated this.”
